

Noel's Kitchen Tips.com Writer's Guidelines for Guest

Posts:

Thank you so much for your interest in guest posting at Noel's Kitchen Tips.com. I look forward to reading what you have to share. Here are some things to keep in mind:

1. Guest posts should be 250-600 words in length. We tend to think we use a lot of words to make our point. But often, that is not true. Of course, sometimes less is more in certain instances.
2. Please take the time in proof-reading your post before submitting a clean, finalized copy. For me, part of the beauty in having guest bloggers is delegating some of the work load to someone else.
3. Noel's Kitchen Tips.com is meant to dedicate to inspire the lives of busy moms and dads lives easier by providing recipes, kitchen tips and tips tools for their families to create quick and easy meal time solutions and gather around the dinner table more often. Please keep this focus as you write your post.
4. Links within the posts are great, especially if you're linking to Noel's Kitchen Tips.com. Feel free to place links to your own blog.
5. Your submitting a post does not guarantee it being published on Noel's Kitchen Tips.com
6. You retain the copyright to your work. Your submission is a sign that you have given me permission to post it on my site.
7. Feel free to write a short bio at the end of the post. This may include your name, blog address, contact information, bio, etc.
8. Please submit at least one original or "free" image to accompany your post. If you get it from the web, please attribute your source. I reserve the right to use alternate photos.
9. Copy and paste your post in body of an e-mail to noelskichen@gmail.com. Attach your photo(s) to the same e-mail.

Any questions, please feel free to ask.
